Different countries - Common opportunities

As part of the European Union (EU) accession and harmonization, the countries in the Danube region are undergoing a process of rapid modernization, which has a large influence on the design and development of water and wastewater services. Due to great demand from international companies and the great need of the countries in the Western Balkans, REECO opens up another platform in Serbia - all around water-related topics. We would like to outline, that this trade fair and conferences include the Western Balkan Region, including governmental institutions, national and international agencies, ministries, embassies, foreign trade chambers and much more. That means, all exhibiting companies have the opportunity in only 4 days meet the entire region as well as the regional target groups.

On Country Stands meet governmental institutions and public and private enterprises presenting, investment opportunities, technologies, country updates and much more

Key facts

After the terrible floods in the region in 2014, and again in 2016, it became clear how important an action plan is. Numerous programs of national and international institutions, such as the adaptation to climate change, conservation and sustainable use of biodiversity, water sector reform, early warning systems in connection with the disaster risk management, flood recovery programs, Danube programs, significant effluent problems and much more were launched.

Attendance of all target groups

Decision makers and experts from ministries, agencies, institutions, banks, associations and local governments will participate in more than 20 program topics. REXPO® Water Management also provides water-related projects for national and international business, translates and presents topics, communicates with the target groups and opens new markets.
