

Ms. Despina Kallidromitou is co-founder President and Managing Director of consulting company Epsilon SA since 1991. She holds a Diploma of Civil Engineer specialized in hydraulics, Water Resources and Environment of Bochum University Germany and of National Technical University of Athens, Greece. She holds a Master Degree in business Administration (MBA) of National Technical University of Athens (NTUA), Greece. She has received special courses on mathematical techniques, and environmental systems modelling of the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee, Department of Civil Engineering, Division of Environmental Engineering, USA and in Optimisation and Decision Support Systems of the Herriot Watt University Edinburgh, UK. She is certified auditor of TUV HELLAS for the ISO 9001: 2008 and 14001:2008. She was the National Representative of EU in Teleworking and she has worked as an EU expert in Puno Peru. She has Academic and Professional experience and has acting as coordinator on a numerous of national and international projects on Hydraulics, water resources and environmental matters, waste management, mathematical environmental modelling, sustainable environmental management, decision support systems, modelling and forecasting, Cost-Benefit and Multi-Criteria Analysis, environmental economics, law and policy, remote sensing & GIS, risk analysis and civil protection management. She was member in the Board of Directors of HELASCO Hellenic Society of Civil Engineers as Vice General Secretary (1995-1997) and General Secretary (2011-2015). She is also member in ASCE- American Society of Civil Engineers, in American Society for Photogrammetry & Remote Sensing, in Hellenic Technical Chamber of Engineers (TEE) etc. She is co-author in two books and she has elaborated more than 100 scientific publications with numerous citations. She speaks Greek, English, German and Spanish.