

George Kazos is Civil Engineer, graduated from National Technical University of Athens (1978). He is involved in the sector of design and consultancy services.

He is one of the founders, member of the BoD and Director of the company NAMA Consulting Engineers and Planners SA (1990). He has participated in the design and management of numerous infrastructure projects, particularly hydraulic projects, in Greece and abroad. He has managed contracts for significant projects, for various Authorities and projects for the Olympic Games Athens 2004. He has experience in the management of projects from the stage of feasibility study up to the construction phase and the handover, having been occupied with all tasks of the works process (technical issues, legislation, tendering, licensing, funding, etc). He has also experience in the business management of multi share companies with international activity.

During the period 1985 - 1991, he worked for the wider public sector (VIPETVA SA), as site engineer and project manager of various important infrastructure works for Industrial Areas.

He was involved in the Hellenic Association of Consulting Firms (HELLASCO), participating in the Main Board from 2010 until 2015 and as President of the Association for the period 2014-2015.

He has participated in a number of Committees and Institutional Bodies of the Greek State, as representative of Greek consulting companies, dealing with issues of application of the laws and regulations by the state as well as with advisory issues for the improvement of laws and regulations.

He is married, has two children and a granddaughter.